

The best is yet to come: end-of-season winter sports in Serfaus-Fiss-Ladis

Passionate skiers and snowboarders agree: The last curves of the season are usually the most fantastic. The sun is finally shining brightly, the temperatures are on their way up - and after the fabulous spring skiing in the morning, there is still plenty of time for experiences and events in the mountain villages of Serfaus, Fiss and Ladis.

In Serfaus-Fiss-Ladis you can enjoy 130 out of 365 of fantastic ski and snowboard days! This is made possible by the altitude between 1,200 and 2,828 metres above sea level, the special microclimate between the Lechtal Valley, Ötztal Alps and Engadin - and of course, state-of-the-art technology. The 68 cable cars will transport skiers, snowboarders (but also non-skiers who want to enjoy the white winter world) up the mountain from 8 December 2022 to 16 April 2023. And on the way back down, they have 214 kilometres of slopes to choose from. So the season is long on the Tyrolean sun terrace, but never boring! Here are the end-of-season podium positions in Serfaus-Fiss-Ladis:

Bronze: When the warm rays of the spring sunshine hit, euphoria starts to set in

Why are real ski experts so keen on spring? It's simple! End-of-season skiing means blue skies, mild temperatures, and less traffic on the slopes. At the beginning of April, the sun is starting to get its strength back, enough to gently warm the south-facing slopes – and the hearts of happy spring snow enthusiasts. Now you can soak up the sun on the terraces without a winter coat, work on your first spring tan and take a relaxed stroll through the villages after skiing or snowboarding. Spring is a season in a league of its own: far down in the Inntal valley the crocuses are already in bloom and on the high plateau of Serfaus-Fiss-Ladis spring is slowly arriving, but the mountains are still in the depth of winter. And on the slopes? Wonderful spring snow conditions are forming. But more on that further below.

Silver: Plus degrees instead of winter chill makes après-ski even more fun

If you want to banish winter and welcome spring, Serfaus-Fiss-Ladis is the place to be: on Wednesday evenings, the Adventure Night "Fairy Tale" takes place in Serfaus with spectacular and colourful live acts, including artists and acrobats from the world-famous Cirque du Soleil. At the Nightflow "Rock the Snow" in Fiss, cool dancers and acrobats rock the Nightflow Arena - and the snow sports instructors of the Ski School Fiss-Ladis catapult themselves bravely over high jumps into the starry night sky. The Nightflow takes place every Tuesday. Directly below the mighty Laudeck castle, "Magic Ladis" attracts visitors every Thursday with a cosy mix of late-winter evening atmosphere, traditional live entertainment, and culinary delights.

Gold medal: Sun and snow enter a tender love affair in spring

As mentioned, the sun has quite a bit of strength at the beginning of April. It rises earlier, sets later and takes a much steeper arc than in December. The result: sunlight and gentle warmth cause the snow crystals to melt on the surface - and it's spring snow time! When the slopes build up these special conditions in spring, they form their very own, buttery-soft and magic-carpet-like base. Spring snow experts know exactly when and where in the ski area to find perfect conditions to dance effortlessly through the spring snow. However, one thing must be clear to every spring skiing fan: Every dream has an end. And spring snow skiing usually ends precisely around midday. But then the après-ski on one of the numerous sun terraces or the event program in Serfaus-Fiss-Ladis already begins.
