

Comfortable arrival and environmentally conscious mobility in the Stubai Valley

When the holidays begin with the journey

The Stubai Valley is centrally located and close to the easily accessible city of Innsbruck. It is not only considered one of the most beautiful and eventful regions in Tyrol but also convinces with a well-thought-out mobility concept that enables guests to travel in an environmentally friendly and comfortable way. With perfectly coordinated rail connections, reliable bus lines and a direct road connection, holidaymakers can reach the Stubai Valley quickly and easily. There is also a modern infrastructure on site with well-timed public transport.

By train to the Stubai: relaxed, environmentally friendly and free travel

Travelling by train is one of the most comfortable and sustainable ways to get to the Stubai Valley. If you decide to take the train, you will first reach Innsbruck. From there, the electrically powered "Stubaitalbahn" (Stubai Valley Railway) offers a direct connection to Fulpmes – a relaxed and low-emission alternative to the car. In addition, bus line 590 is available for the onward journey to the valley. Guests who spend the night in one of the five Stubai municipalities will receive a voucher from the tourism association among www.stubai.at/en/info-service/free-arrival/. This is valid for free arrival and departure with the Stubai Valley Railway or bus. Transfer gaps in the first and last kilometres of the journey are thus a thing of the past.

The Nightjet offers, which the tourism association communicates together with the Austrian Federal Railways (ÖBB), are also particularly attractive. The Nightjet connects numerous European cities such as Hamburg, Amsterdam, Vienna or Graz directly with Innsbruck. In a sleeper, couchette or seated car, travellers reach their destination the next morning rested – so maximum comfort is offered even on a long journey.

Convenient mobility and service on site: "Stubuss'l" and ski buses in the Stubai Valley

Within the valley, winter holidaymakers receive an all-round carefree mobility package: With valid ski passes from the region or in winter sports clothing and equipment, rides to the cable car stations, cross-country ski trails, toboggan runs or winter hiking trails are free of charge. The ski buses run at least every 30 minutes and take guests directly to the four Stubai ski areas. This also includes the so-called "Stubuss'l" – bus line 595, which connects the five villages flexibly, stops at the StuBay leisure centre and runs until late in the evening.

Travelling by e-car in a climate-friendly way: Numerous e-charging stations throughout the valley

Anyone travelling to the Stubai Valley by electric car can look forward to around 50 charging stations – many of which are located directly at hotels, cable cars and tourist hotspots, and the range of charging options is constantly being expanded. The journey is easy: From Innsbruck, it takes just 20 minutes to reach the valley via the Brenner motorway including the Europa Bridge or alternatively via the scenic Brenner federal road.

Thanks to modern fast-charging points along the route and in the Stubai Valley itself, the journey becomes a relaxed experience where environmental awareness and comfort go hand in hand. This means that the holiday feeling begins as soon as you arrive - without any range stress.

The Stubai Valley – a pioneer for sustainable, comfortable and flexible travel

The Stubai Valley impressively demonstrates what modern mobility in the Alps can look like: future-orientated, comfortable and perfectly connected. Whether by train with free onward travel or by e-car - the routes to the valley are varied and tailored to the needs of the guests. On site, a well-interlinked public transport network complements the offer and ensures that holidaymakers can move freely, flexibly and environmentally consciously. So, your holiday in the Stubai Valley starts as soon as you arrive - uncomplicated, relaxed and all about modern mobility.
