

Legendary season finale: Ischgl sets new standards with Christina Aguilera

A spectacular finale at over 2,300 metres: Christina Aguilera delivered an electrifying performance at the “Top of the Mountain Closing Concert”, showcasing her powerhouse vocals, dynamic choreography and commanding stage presence – all set against a breathtaking alpine backdrop and in front of 19,000 enthusiastic spectators. A closing event that not only gave goosebumps but also crowned a highly successful winter season in Ischgl in impressive style.

A fitting, emotional and remarkable end to the winter season: at this year’s “Top of the Mountain Closing Concert” on 2 May, global superstar Christina Aguilera transformed the Idalp in Ischgl into a stage of superlatives. Against the striking backdrop of the Silvretta Arena, 19,000 concertgoers experienced a musical highlight that seamlessly joins the ranks of Ischgl’s legendary “Top of the Mountain Concerts”.

A concert that makes history

With an energetic performance and her unmistakable voice, Christina Aguilera captivated the audience from the very first moment. Supported by an ensemble of dancers, impressive choreography and multiple spectacular outfit changes, the show evolved into a visually and musically stunning overall experience. From the very first notes, it was clear that this closing concert was more than just the end of a season – it was an emotional climax, powerfully highlighting the unique fusion of music, mountains and international flair.

The setlist offered a cross-section of Aguilera’s remarkable career: from classics such as “Genie in a Bottle”, “Fighter” and “Beautiful” to modern hits and powerful ballads, creating a musical journey that connected generations. By the time “Dirty” hit the stage, the Idalp had transformed into a sea of emotion – a goosebump moment at over 2,300 metres.

Perfect conditions for an extraordinary event

With ideal conditions, Ischgl once again showed itself at its very best: sunshine and spring-like temperatures provided the perfect setting for this unique open-air experience. The combination of skiing enjoyment and an international concert format once again made the event an unparalleled highlight in the Alpine events calendar.

A crowning finale to a strong winter season

At the same time, the “Top of the Mountain Closing Concert” marked the highlight of a successful 2025/26 winter season. With the arrival of the two-millionth guest in the Silvretta Arena on 17 April 2026, Ischgl once again underlined its international appeal and enduring popularity.

The continuous development of the destination, combined with innovative event formats and a clear commitment to quality, was also reflected in this season finale. Once again, it became clear why Ischgl is regarded as a pioneer in Alpine tourism and stands for exceptional experiences.

Ischgl remains a stage for great moments

With Christina Aguilera’s performance, Ischgl continues its success story of the “Top of the Mountain Concerts” in impressive fashion. International superstars, a spectacular natural setting and an enthusiastic audience merge here year after year to create a truly unique overall experience.

The “Top of the Mountain Closing Concert” 2026 will be remembered as one of those legendary events that shape the myth of Ischgl – and once again demonstrate why the destination is considered the “Pioneer of Music Acts in the Alps”.
